

Archive for April, 2011

April 5th, 2011

Accreditation Moving Ahead

The national accreditation meeting held Feb. 26th addressed the need for accreditation for Christian Montessori schools. The 28 delegates from all over the country (teachers, administrators, parents and business people) focused on giving greater vibrancy to the future of the Christian Montessori movement.

It was a very different educational meeting. A lot of time was given to prayer and worship. Christian Montessori, while focused on education, is about sharing the Gospel through education. Doing Montessori education successfully is important but more important is the Christian spiritual transformation of both student and teacher (and parents as well.) What does it profit a man if he gets the best Montessori education in the world but loses his soul?

Christian Montessori Fellowship working with NCPA (National Council for Private School Accreditation) will follow standard accrediting protocols while creating a unique set of standards for Christian Montessori Schools. We are in the early stages of crafting CMF standards. If you are interested in contributing to this process please email us so we can add you to the information flow.